January 23, 2001

The commanding officer of the three-ship Tarawa amphibious ready group, which is returning to San Diego after service in the Persian Gulf, was relieved of command over the weekend pending an investigation.

Capt. Allan Wall, commander of Amphibious Squadron 5, is accused of routinely using inappropriate and offensive language that caused morale problems within the command, Navy officials said yesterday.

The squadron includes the amphibious ships Tarawa, Anchorage and Duluth. The vessels are carrying the 13th Marine Expeditionary Unit, based at Camp Pendleton. Wall's command included 1,750

The Navy would not reveal who filed a complaint or how the complaint was forwarded to local commanders.

Two officers from San Diego will investigate the allegations against Wall, a Naval Academy graduate and 29-year Navy veteran. They flew to Hong Kong to meet the Tarawa when it arrived for a port visit.

Wall was flying back to San Diego and was unavailable for comment yesterday. He will be given a desk job during the inquiry.

If the allegations are proven, the captain could be punished informally by Adm. Marshall, or more serious charges could be
